De - Addiction with Ease

Addiction to cigarettes

“When I came to Om Shree Dham Homa Therapy Centre I was very emotionally unstable. I was deeply addicted to smoking cigarettes. Every time I tried to quit in the past I would have intense withdrawals and cravings. Being in Homa atmosphere, performing Agnihotra twice daily and some Om Tryambakam Homa as well, drinking Agnihotra ash in water and working in nature I have experienced minimal to no withdrawal symptoms and have felt very centered and happy. The atmosphere is saturated with pranic goodness and has helped my mind, body and soul release so many dysfunctional and toxic aspects that have held me back from really living my life in the way I have always wanted. If there is one way I could describe Agnihotra (and Homa Therapy lifestyle): it is the way life should be!!!” Kyle from Bellinghen

Ayla and Kyle from Bellinghen healing and helping out at Om Shree Dham

Chronic Fatigue and Caffeine addiction - Anonymous

A visitor from Victoria came to experience the healing effect of Homa on Chronic Fatigue, a condition brought on by exposure to high levels of EMF from a Smart Meter (Meters installed to measure electricity use with dangerous levels of EMF in all homes in the state of Victoria). She said that normally by the afternoon she would turn to coffee and chocolate just to keep going but in Homa atmosphere she was energized from sunrise to sunset. She had no cravings or need for chocolate which had become an addiction.

Editor - this is a common experience regards any form of addiction including heavy drugs ie when in Homa atmosphere cravings and withdrawals disappear.

Also regards EMF – we have personal experience at Om Shree Dham using an EMF measuring device that EMF distortion fields are neutralized where Agnihotra is performed regularly. There was no EMF measured next to our Fire Hut underneath a utility power transformer.

Kyle, Ayla and Jaimie from US at Om Shree Dham to integrate Homa Therapy into their lives. All underwent transformation, and are continuing Agnihotra at home.

Scientific Aspects of Agnihotra

Purification of Water by Agnihotra

Dr. Ulrich Berk

Dr Ulich Berk

Scientific experiments have shown Agnihotra purifies the air from pathogenic bacteria, reduces harmful chemicals in the air like NO_x and SO_x, and also reduces the quantity of particulate matter in the air (which is harmful for our respiratory system).

Scientific experiments also show that Agnihotra and Agnihotra Ash purify water. We are advised to add Agnihotra Ash to our drinking water, and many of us are doing so regularly. Why is that recommended? The reason is: Agnihotra Ash removes pathogenic bacteria from water. This has been tested a number of times. One impressive experiment was done by Dr. John Matlander of Cuenca, Ecuador.

Dr John Matlander

"The experiment involved a gallon of infected water that I had for several weeks. Before using it, I requested a doctor to analyze it with a potent microscope. He told me that the water was cultivating containing fungi, staphylococcus and streptococci. Before throwing it away, I put some of this water in a 200 ml glass and added two teaspoons of Agnihotra ash. I mixed it well and left it for 3 days.

Then I returned it to the doctor and asked for further investigation with the microscope and he said: "Completely pure water." So I told him that this was the same water he had analyzed 3 days ago and the doctor thought that this was impossible, completely impossible. But it happened this way, the Agnihotra ash had made this water completely pure."

That means: Agnihotra purifies water.

But even if we do not add Agnihotra Ash to water but just keep water in some bottle next to the Agnihotra fire, the water gets purified. This was shown by Dr. John Matlander in an additional experiment.

There was a 77% reduction in the number of colonies containing Klebsiella and Enterobacterium S.P. and an 81% reduction in Escherichia Coli.

Similar experiments done in Maheshwar Homa Therapy Goshala, Madhya Pradesh, India confirmed this result: Just keeping water in some container next to the Agnihotra fire purifies water. This leads to the hypothesis that not only Agnihotra Ash, but also the fumes of Agnihotra have the potency to purify water. But what happens if the water bottles are closed so that neither ash nor fumes of Agnihotra get into contact with the water examined? The water still got purified! Parameters measured were COD (Chemical Oxygen Demand), DO (Dissolved Oxygen), pH, total hardness, and count of coliform bacteria.

Quite an astonishing result as in this experiment – different from those mentioned before – there was no contact neither with Agnihotra Ash nor with Agnihotra fumes. Therefore the effect cannot be explained by some sort of chemical reaction.

It seems there is some kind of energy field around the Agnihotra fire which brings about this effect of water purification.....

We have seen that Agnihotra Ash, Agnihotra fumes, and even just proximity to Agnihotra fire are helping to purify water. All these experiments were done using small quantities of water. The water was kept in bottles of 200 ml up to 1 litre.

But what about larger bodies of water? Pollution of rivers, lakes, and oceans is a big environmental concern. But of course that is a big challenge to achieve some improvement. Still, some initial results could be obtained.

Following photos show one part of the Narmada River, Madhya Pradesh, India before and after Agnihotra Ash had been added. Within three days a big improvement could be seen:

Narmada River

Before Agnihotra Ash had been added

After Agnihotra Ash had been added

This shows that it is a very good habit to regularly add some of your Agnihotra Ash to water bodies in your vicinity. If you have your own well, then best to do so regularly.

But not only the ash helps – also the healing atmosphere of Agnihotra (and other Homa fires) helps to purify water. Below see the results of monitoring the water quality of Narmada River in Central India. Water samples were taken at Omkareshwar upstream from Homa Therapy Goshala (which is situated next to the banks of the Narmada River), adjacent to our Homa Therapy Goshala and further downstream at Barwani. In all the different parameters, the water next to this Homa Therapy Goshala was best – and it was the only place where the water was fulfilling the standards set by World Health Organization. This initial result shows that Homa places do have an effect on larger water bodies like a big river.

Miracles in our backyards and in our homes

“I Was born in deep tradition, adorning the Vibhuti (Holy Ash) on the forehead to go to school, still little did I know of the potency and power of the Vedic way of life. For most part of my early childhood and even adulthood it was all just traditions to follow.

Later when I got into a few spiritual circles I became more aware of the meaning of these traditions and the principles on which they were built. When I dwelt a bit more into spirituality I came to understand the power of subtle energies and how they could influence and make a profound effect on the individual, society and the environment.

Living in a mundane world steeped in materialism and so called rationalist thought, one succumbs to questions like “How can that be?”, “Where is the evidence?”, “This not how it is”, etc. With that background, one day, my wife Lalitha brought home the news of Agnihotra. It intrigued me that this had come from westerners who were unlikely to have had exposure to Vedic traditions. But putting all that aside, I sat with my wife to do Agnihotra at sunrise and sunset.

I continued on with Agnihotra and did not expect anything. One day, in my backyard garden, the standard rose plant took me by surprise. This plant was there some time ago and perhaps due to neglect, it almost dried up looking dead. But then this almost dead rose started blossoming with new shoots and looked healthy and vibrant. My wife said she had applied Agnihotra ash to the rose. That startled me. The rose continues to grow and flower year after year.

Lalitha and Ganapathi outside the Yajnya Shala, Om Shree Dham

Then came the second incident. The lemon tree. One summer, when we were away it was not watered and started to dry. I just left it hoping that it may revive. After sometime, I noted a lot of new growth on the plant. It eventually started to yield lemons every year. There again, it is the play of Agnihotra ash which my wife has diligently applied.

The miracles of Agnihotra ash continued on. Our son had developed some warts on his back from the swimming pool. We did the usual treatments and ointments as per medical advice but the warts kept coming back. At that point, Lalitha applied an ointment made of Agnihotra ash and ghee. Though it meant all the bed sheets were stained with ash and ghee she persevered with the treatment. The warts vanished forever.

After these experiences, I could see how Agnihotra could be utilised on farms to transform the environment and give great yields. Eventually we made it to the Agnihotra farm of Frits and Lee in the Hunter Valley NSW. There we refined our practice and witnessed a thriving Agnihotra farm. I experienced the transformational effect Homa Therapy has on people and our minds. Lalitha noted how the entire atmosphere in and around the farm is so distinctly full of life and joy. I saw how cheerful and happy the couple are on their farm and their dedication to Agnihotra. They shared so many experiences: the underground water that changed from overly alkaline to PH neutral, from saline to potable and how the ground water miraculously changed direction to flow under the Agnihotra hut, gathering prana along the way was remarkable and inspiring.

We drove for almost 24 hours (return trip) from the farm to home in Melbourne, Vic. and did not feel any sign of tiredness. It was a pleasant holiday that rejuvenated us both physically and energetically.” Ganapathi, Victoria

Pet dog heals from spinal deterioration and intense pain

Jan Tracy and her pet dogs, N-NSW

“February this year my pet dog Sol began to walk with great discomfort and that quickly progressed to screaming pain. He has weakness in the last disc from a spur and some arthritis. It was a long slow journey of specialty vets and extensive tests, rest, nerve blockers, anti-inflammatory tabs & cortisone injections into the spine..... not a happy situation. When Sol lay down his hind leg would give him tremendous pain (I was having similar trouble with my sciatica as soon as I lay down). I was praying, clearing energy, hands-on healing and performing sunset Agnihotra.

My 3 dogs, all brothers, would sit close by the fire and suddenly it dawned on me to feed Sol and all of us, the Agnihotra ash. I put it in their food and I consumed the ash aswell regularly. I suddenly noticed how Sol's eyes were sparkling again and he was becoming his old HAPPY self, moving with ease. Rolling onto his back, such a marked improvement after 4 months of constricted movement. We were all feeling happier and my sciatica healed up as well. I cut his nerve medication down and realized that once I had started feeding him the ash he didn't need his nerve blockers anymore. We could begin walking on the beach and Sol has returned to his beautiful Top Dog Self. The 3 brothers turned '13' on 31.10.16.

Sol, healthy and happy again

Poem

by Kathy Parkins, part of an Agnihotra Support Group in Warburton, Country Victoria

Agnihotra in the morning
Is a beautiful thing to be performing
The birds are singing ever so lightly
As the day becomes even more brightly
The trees seem to welcome you back
To the little Agnihotra shack
The day is fresh and crisp and clean
Tis a beautiful sight that must be seen
The sky is blue with shades of purple and pink
It will be a glorious day today I think
What a wonderful way
To start the day
At the end of the day I will do it again
But hopefully it will be with a friend
So that we can share this glorious gift
To help mother nature with this energy shift
To bring back peace, harmony and love
To the Earth and sky above
The birds will sing us a song goodnight

Which will bring us pure delight
Until the next day when I start it again
And I will hear the birds I now call friends
They welcome me back
To my little Agnihotra shack
Just like the trees
What glorious be.

‘Until the next day when I start it again

And I will hear the birds I now call friends’

‘The trees seem to welcome you back

To the little Agnihotra shack’

Health and Wellbeing for Farm Animals and Bore Water Improved

“Ashka and myself have done Agnihotra sessions and have noticed the following on our farm: We've used the ash and ghee mixed or separate on our horses and dogs in their feed or on their skin. This changed their skin conditions over night sort! Regarding the Qld Itch on the horse, there was no more agitated rubbing. After the Agnihotra ash in their feeds, there was improved temperament amongst the horses who had been cranky from insects bites, gut issues, ulcers etc. After putting ash in the feed for our female Kelpie pet dog with pups her coat became shinier and it improved the quantity of milk production to her pups.

Further we put Agnihotra ash down the Bore hole and around it and noted that the hard water became less brackish, calcium build up dramatically less and taste improved.”

Self and Planetary Healing Retreat Sedili, Johor, Malaysia

Organised by Betty Khoo, Agnihotri and inspiring force behind Starseed. The Retreat featured the wholistic wisdom of Dr Amir-Farid, medical specialist and also Master Gi gong healer. As part of the Retreat Agnihotra sunrise and sunset was performed daily by a group of dedicated Agnihotris. People sat in a circle in front of the ocean to perform the healing fires.

First-timer Sharan Sambhi had come with a bit of a cold. Sharan reported that her cold was gone after four Agnihotra sittings. Datuk Alan Yong shared how his Indonesian housekeeper was going to be deported because she was suffering from tuberculosis. He pleaded with the authorities and got her to sit by the Agnihotra fire for two weeks. The doctor was amazed at the X-ray taken. Her lungs were clear!
